Zelgor 2023 Year in Review

Hello Zelgor Supporters!

2023 was a year of intense work expanding the Noobiverse to get it ready for launch. Early last year, we released our latest update showing off all our renovations to our core game mechanics. Users now go from planet to planet collecting as much fruit as possible while dodging asteroids and other wacky hazards along the way. As we had hoped, these changes made the game loop much more friendly to players of all ages and skill levels. The feedback we've received from the Early Access community has helped validate our vision for the future of the game.

With our core game loop solidifying, our next step has been to expand the story of the Noobs and the Noobiverse; coming up with new places for the Noobs to explore, obstacles to overcome, and unique societies for the Noobs to visit throughout their journey.

The story itself is a big part of what helps players immerse themselves in games, and it's an area where players, investors, and potential strategic partners have been asking for more. As a result of our work, we now have a framework for more than enough story content for soft launch, full launch, and even post-launch. Our next step is to integrate these new solar systems, societies, and stories into Noobs in Space, bringing the story and game mechanics together. The story content not only serves to help finish the development of Noobs in Space, but serves as the foundation for all future Noob content as well.

The progress we've made on the game development side has helped us grow our community of Noob supporters as well. We successfully raised $1,000,000 at a $1 share price, the most we've ever raised under one valuation. We've added Noob supporters in this round that have expertise in taking IPs like the Noobs and using them to create shows, movies, and merchandise. Thanks to all the hard work we've poured into the Noobs IP, they're now attracting interest from strategic partners and institutional investors as well. As we further develop and polish the story of the Noobs we believe the interest from these groups will continue to grow. We are excited about what this means for the future of Zelgor and the impending Noob invasion.

As for the big question: When will Noobs in Space officially launch in the US? Well, that's exactly what our next round of funding is all about. We'll be looking to raise up to $5M to secure the necessary funds to market the game on a large scale and grow the company to support a live game while developing future games, like NoobTubes.

Thank you for your continued support and your patience while we work to make Noobs in Space a game that all fellow Noobs will enjoy. We are excited about the direction of Noobs in Space and the Noob Universe.
